RoHS letter to customers

8th April 2016

Dear Sirs

Ref: RoHS Directive 2011/65/EU. Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive Declaration of Conformity

On the 2nd January 2013, RoHS 1 was replaced by the recast RoHS 2 directive – 2011/65/EU, including the revision of Annex 11 thereof by Directive 2015/863 and Annex 111 which exempts Lead as an alloying element in steel for machining purposes and is allowed to contain up to 0.35% lead by weight.

Acton Bright Steel Ltd purchases carbon, alloy, stainless and tool steel for a wide range of applications and as far as we are aware, the steel grades stocked in 2016 conform to the requirements of this standard and its revisions.

Yours sincerely
